- Writing for Understanding – writing assignments, which ask you to synthesize information from more than one source, write persuasively in defense of a perspective, or respond to and analyze contemporary and historic events, will be assigned regularly.
- Google Forms question: Students will have the option to answer a culminating question about each unit OR completion of the study guide. Links to Google Forms for each unit will be available in the AP World History Google Classroom on a page titled “Unit Review Questions”. Study guides will also be available on Infinite Campus as well as a physical copy will be passed out to each student one week prior to a unit quiz.
- GRAPES—a form of reading notes that will be assigned 1-2 times per unit. In these assignments, students are to describe Geographical, Religious, Achievements, Politics, Economic activity, and Social structures/rules of a region. For each section, of the notes, students are required to have at least 3 examples with descriptions.
- Attendance is vital. Should you miss class, it is your responsibility to find out what you’ve missed. You have the same number of days to turn in work as the number of days for which you had excused absences. Many activities and experiences cannot be recreated for an individual who misses class. Poor attendance will affect your grade.
- Lying, cheating, plagiarism or any form of dishonesty will not be tolerated and will result in a 0 on that assignment. Second offenses will result in recommendation to be dropped from AP World History.
- Test corrections are available for incorrect multiple choice answers only. For each question incorrect, a 2-sentence response will be rewarded with receiving half credit back for that answer. The first sentence will tell me the correct answer in a complete sentence, the second sentence should show an example that demonstrates understanding of that correct answer.
