

2017-2018 COURSE SYLLABUS

Mandarin Level 1P

Course Description:

Students develop cultural awareness and communication skills involving reading, writing, and especially, listening and speaking. The emphasis is on teaching the sounds and tonal system of the language, comprehension and production of frequently used language, including time, weather, greetings, basic objects, family, clothing, entertainment, community, ordering in restaurants, and basic grammar forms, pronouns, and commands.

Students practice extensively in oral communication using the learned vocabulary. A small percentage of the course time will be used to develop reading and writing skills in the language. They learn to write and type simple, high frequency Chinese characters for reading and writing purposes (e.g., letter to pen pal).

Classroom activities are related to the real world and include developing awareness for acceptable behavior in the Chinese culture.
